

Nature invented matter.

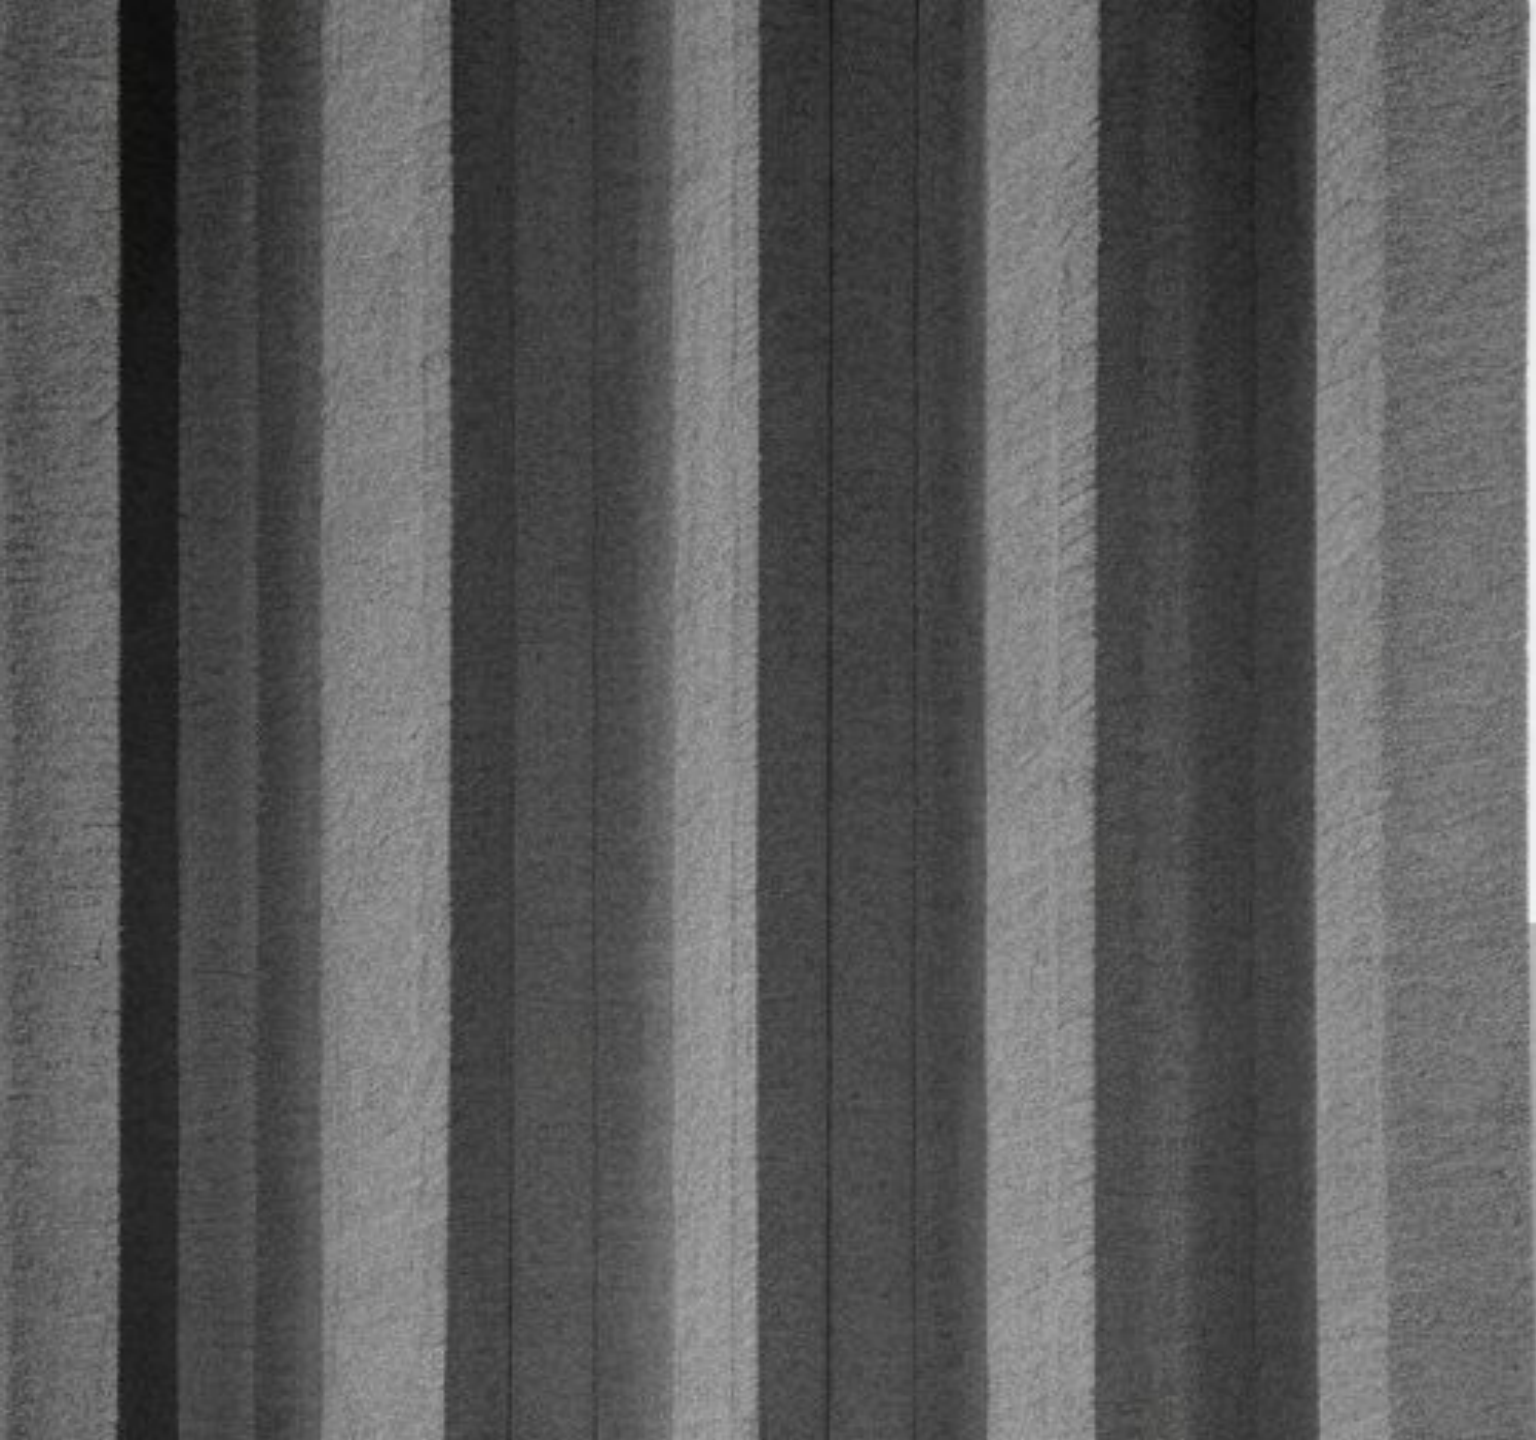

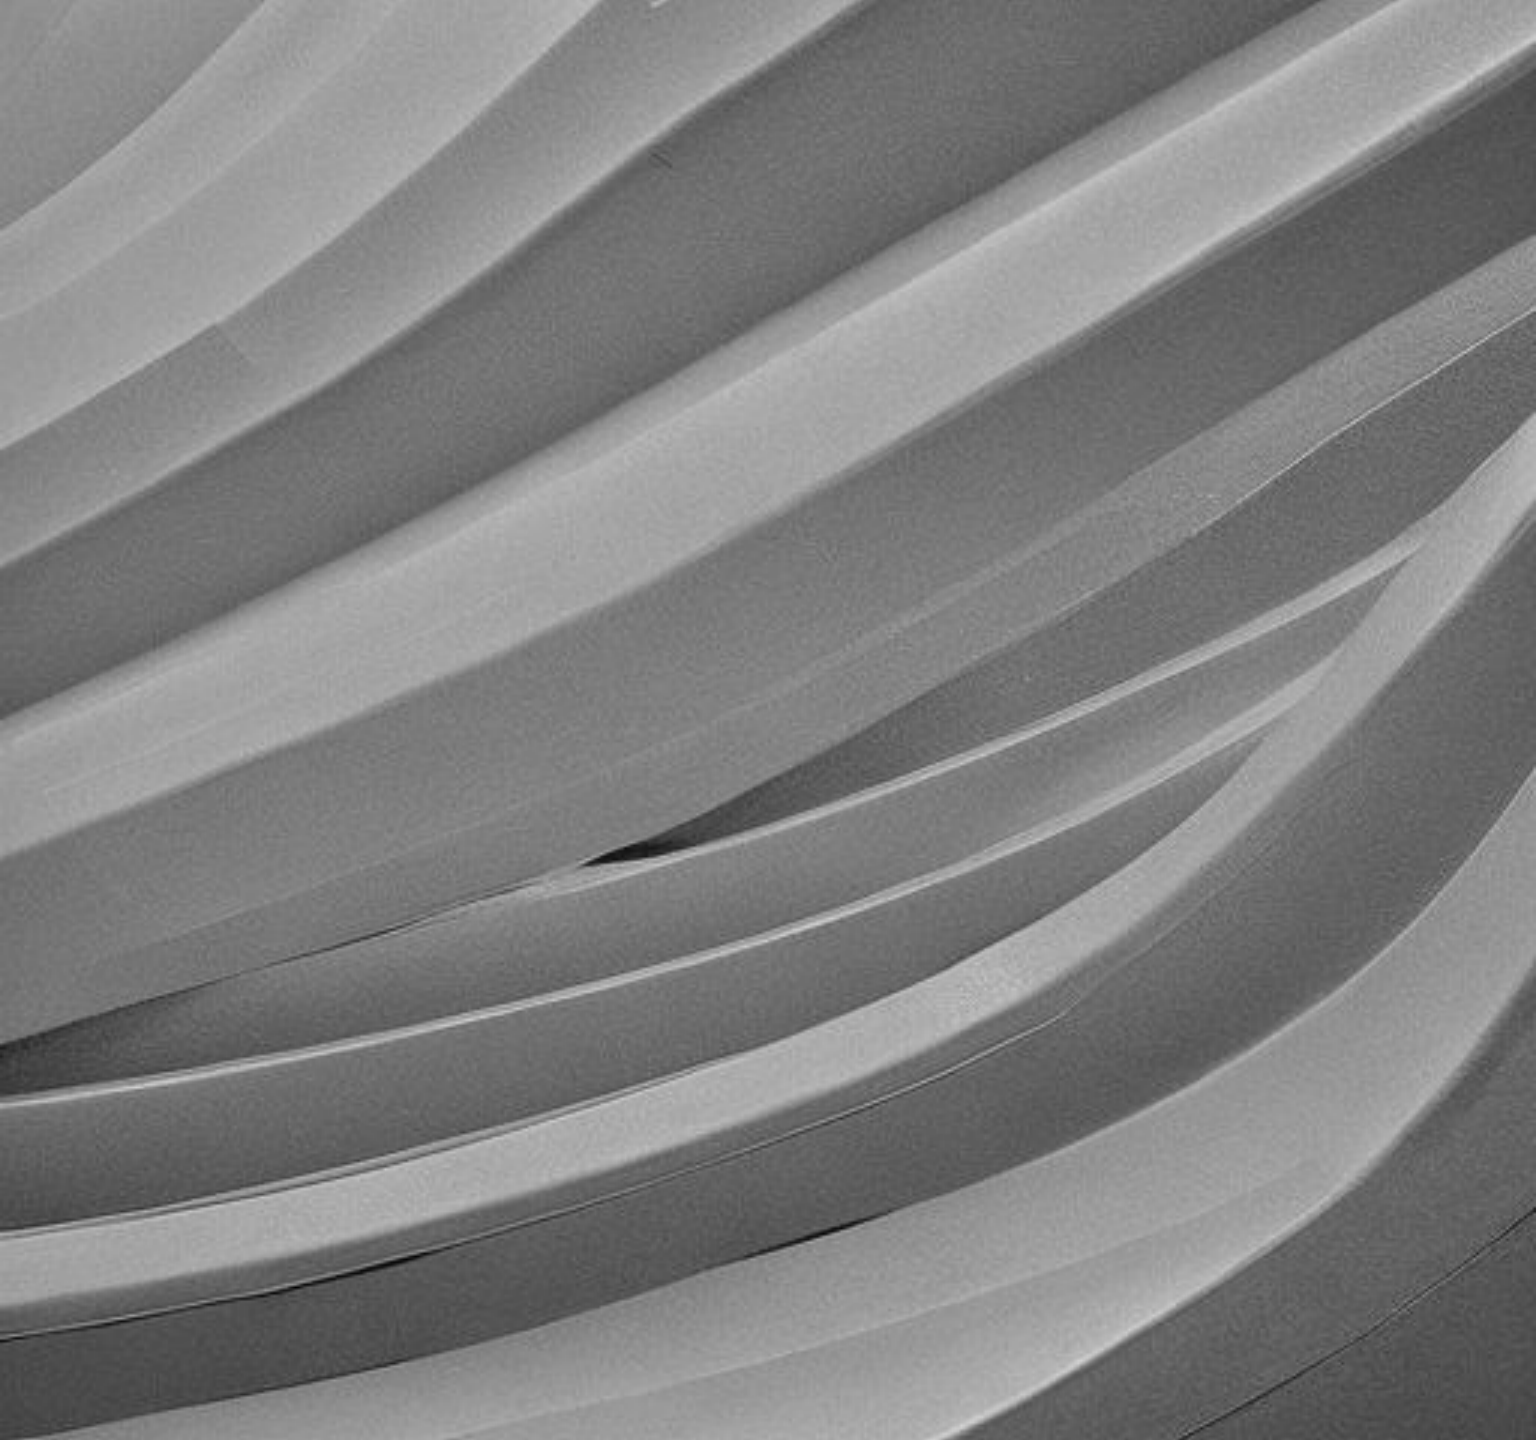

“Man does nothing.”

The common people, who once believed that man has created all such things, do not believe they form any conception of Nature.

Except, they fashion food and drink
according to the dictates of man.

Conditioned to eat it, to drink
it, and to use it.

Do we beleive man was a person whom we may call friend to the universe?

The future of nature may be better or worse, but the future of nature is against us.

The whole of nature springs from the principle of justice. She endeavours to preserve her being.

The sun will rise to-morrow.
